- Heterogeneous territorial distribution
  - But 45% in Andalucía

- The Constitution of 1978: Spanish Roma on an equal legal footing with other Spanish citizens. Article 14 guarantees equality and full citizenship, and prohibits discrimination on grounds of racial origin, religion and gender for all citizens.
Spain was the first country in Europe to adopt a national programme for Roma. The adoption of the Programa de Desarrollo Gitano (Programme for the Roma development) in 1988 was the result of a Motion of the Congress of Deputies, dated 3 October 1985, calling for the implementation of an action plan to foster social development for Spain’s Roma and improve their standard of living while respecting their cultural difference as a people.
