Overview

- The issue of Roma problem is not a simple question of poverty
- The solution of the complex problem needs several methods and measures to be planned and implemented related to the appointed aims
- There are many programs aiming to decrease poverty in general, but special Roma programs are necessary
- The policy aiming the inclusion of Roma can not be operated separately from the contention against poverty
- Involving Roma communities need special methods and approaches

- The National Social Inclusion Strategy aims to facilitate the inclusion of socially disadvantaged communities. The Strategy urges efficient approaches, and establishment of policy giving opportunities for disadvantaged groups.
- The most important areas to be developed: labor market integration (access to work, employability), access to education creating opportunities, equal access to health services.
- The development of housing conditions is critical.
- The Government seeks to provide solutions to maintain housing problems, and the access to the high level public services.
The goal of the Strategy of Housing is to increase institutionalized methods, and tools related to the prevention of segregation.

The abolishment of the slum-like housing is one of the long term aims of the Strategy.
Segregation Index

- Index: the percent of active age (15-59 year) within the population who has -
  - qualification in grammar school maximum
  - no labor income

- Indicator of segregation
  - Territorially continuous blocks inside a township’s territory, which collectively measure up to the threshold limit of the indicator of segregation.
  - The block is a category for population census monitoring, and a territorial unit formed by public areas and/or natural and artificial landmarks (for example: railway, motorway, bank of a watercourse etc.) and geographic information grid networks.
Typology

The housing and settlements’ problems need complex solutions which can be accomplished by both the ERDF and the ESF

Public employment

- Public employment programs have largely contributed to the positive perception of the disadvantaged members of society - including Roma. The introduction of “Support instead work" principle and to enforce proved correct.

- Public work employers: institutions which basically have governmental or self-governmental function, or implement community development in different level. Institutions like: local or national self-governments, water directorates, foresteries, national parks.

- In the period of 2011-2013 there was about 205 000 Roma involved in different public work programs.

- For all active age employees getting minimum wage for their effective work became important aim to achieve instead of getting social welfare. However public work is only a tool/method and not the final goal.
Employment support programs

Social land program

- The social land program for disadvantaged, including a large number of Roma families who are living in an agricultural environment suitable for the livelihood of traditional instrument for generating employment opportunities.

- Aim: backyard, kitchen garden crop production, small livestock production by promoting the livelihood of families.

The applicants undertook: 290 hectares tilling, 213,074 plants potting, 110,000 seed packages using.
The proportion of people who are living in income poverty, severe material deprivation and in low work intensity households in 2009-2014:
